COIL is Performance Space 122’s annual performance festival that demonstrates the constant vitality of live performance in New York City featuring work created locally, across the US and around the world.

This year’s COIL challenges the very concept of boundaries and limits: boundaries between ideologies, life and death, the contemporary and historic, human and machine, light and darkness, audience and performer. Limitations of time, identity, age and geography disappear. The work we will see this year deals with evolutionary transformation – personal, social and artistic.

This year’s festival is one of rare discoveries. It is our most ambitious yet and the very last outside of our home at 150 First Ave.

Enjoy.
Give Performance Space (GPS) is a capacity campaign to launch PS122’s growth as an organization with the goal of better serving the artists and audiences of New York City. In tandem with a City of New York-led renovation to our home of over 35 years, the GPS campaign will give PS122 the flexibility to take risks, adapt and grow as a leader within the cultural ecology of New York City.

Help us move back into our East Village home.

Supporters of the GPS Campaign leave a lasting imprint on the future of PS122. Benefits include (more than just beer and pizza): Your name in our new theaters, tickets to COIL 2016, exclusive receptions and more. PS122.org/support

DISCOTROPIC situates itself between the pragmatic and the fantastical while exploring the relationship between science fiction, disco, astrophysics and the black American experience.

Reflecting on the role of black presence in sci-fi history, inspiration was drawn from 70’s actor Diahann Carroll known for her part in the TV movie Star Wars Holiday Special. Cast by NBC at the behest of donors and audience members, who insisted that a black person appear on the show, Carroll appears only as a holographic fantasy—an illusion that distills the ways in which the black female body has been consumed in mass media: as alien, bodacious and marginalized. Dominant science fiction narratives are rewritten through engagement with queer politics and Afrofuturism, claiming new imaginary territory rich in possibility.

An intimate, immersive experience of voice, sound and image, bewilderment and other queer lions radically transmutes Indian classical, folk and ritual music traditions through the collaboration of composer Samita Sinha with musicians Sunny Jain and Grey Mcmurray.

A world of acoustic and electronic sound created on traditional instruments and found objects accompanies Sinha’s voice, which synthesizes the raw and refined in a single breath. Along with acclaimed visual artist Dani Leventhal and director Ain Gordon, Sinha incorporates a wide range of texts and imagery, from South Asian mythology to Freddie Mercury to French novelist Marguerite Duras, meditating on desire and diasporic experience to prophesy a mythic future.

Rather than mash-up, she minimalized, delicately teasing her voice and the elements of the raga form through a vast range of musical territories.

Staged as a live radio show, The Holler Sessions centers around one man’s obsession for jazz. An explosive Kansas City DJ broadcasts his articulate, profane and impassioned testimony in a music-filled interactive experience. Maniacal rants, razor-sharp insights, and mildly scatological humor are interspersed with extraordinary music and lots of space for listening. The Holler Sessions serves as a jazz primer for the uninitiated, a powerful reminder for jazz fans and an irreverent love letter to the best thing America has ever created, and then forgotten.

Created in collaboration with the TEAM

“Frank Boyd’s one-man theater piece is a vital exhortation on the significance of jazz...it should be required viewing for all musicians, music lovers, pop-culture fiends, artists, art fans and American people over the age of 7.”

Drawing inspiration from the Egyptian Book of the Dead, GO FORTH is a performance and photo installation that considers how we create space in our lives for the presence of the absent. Burial is proposed not as erasure but as offering restitution and performing rites.

The 3,000-year-old funerary text is approached as an ancient performance score: excavating the spells and incantations to create a series of burial vignettes, fragments of translation, memory and imagination. Photographic funerary murals usher the audience into a mythological underground landscape. Galvanized by the intimate relationship between black people and death around the world, GO FORTH paves way for audiences to reflect on their individual and collective mourning processes.

Panopticon is co-commissioned by PS122 with support from the Jerome Foundation and Lower Manhattan Cultural Council. Panopticon was developed as part of PS122’s RAMP residency series with support from the Jerome Foundation and LMCC’s Extended Life Dance Development program made possible in part by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Additional presentation support provided by Mertz Gilmore Foundation, Harkness Foundation for Dance and Jerome Robbins Foundation.

Panopticon is a duet that is simultaneously a solo and a work for 100 dancers. Through reflections and multiplications using mirrors and video, a kaleidoscopic arena of bodies is created, obscuring the divide between individual and object.

Inspired by the architectural concept of the panopticon, a structure in which everything is seen at all times, this performance aims to achieve omniscient visibility.

“Young, unquestionably hip and fearless, choreographer and video artist Jillian Peña creates work that is once laughably raw and scarily sophisticated.”

I Understand Everything Better is a deeply personal reflection on the consciousness of dying and narratives interrupted by a cataclysmic storm. Combining personal narratives, traditional Japanese Noh theater, along with work by collaborators Tei Blow and Sibyl Kempson, Neumann’s virtuosic movement and humor reveals the shimmer of realms unseen, the concurrence of unrelated events and the body itself as evidence of a will having to let go.

“By now the line on Mr. Neumann is well established: He is the smart joker of dance. What’s not said as often is how deeply felt and deeply moving his work can be.”

o’ death is a multidisciplinary performance installation that impossibly and playfully attempts to prove that death does not exist and everything we have ever loved is not enough.

Built on a reflexive interaction between sound and movement, the performance comes alive amidst towering styrofoam sculptures and mechanical trees, giving sound a physical presence in movements, objects and lights. The piece takes impulse from ferality, biocentrism and the questions from 1920s blues singer JM Gates’ songs such as “O’ Death, Where is Thy Sting?”

Human artists and computer algorithms collaborate to form a concert of song, machine, gesture, light and space. Beginning with the Beatles’ “Yesterday,” evolutionary algorithms break down the music and gradually reconstruct it to transform into “Tomorrow” from the musical Annie. Three remarkable singers perform a live-generated score. At each performance, the spatial and musical path from the past into the future is different. Our journey’s beginning and end are certain—the route we take between them is unknown.

Confirmation attempts to have an honorable dialogue, real and imagined, with extremist thinking and the toughest political issues of our time. Set in an arena-style ring, a series of conversations between Thorpe and a British activist from the extreme right unfold; tackling frustrations that happen within political discourse and the phenomenon of “confirmation bias.”

Confirmation challenges notions of what it means to be open-minded and asks whether any of us are really listening to the other side of an argument. The effects of confirmation bias are often stronger for emotionally charged issues and for deeply entrenched beliefs, an area which Thorpe and Chavkin are not afraid to tread.

Performance Space 122, Asia Society, and the China Shanghai International Arts Festival (CSIAF) come together for a second year of collaboration through multidisciplinary, music-focused emerging Chinese artists Xi Ban and Pi Huang Club.

Wrapped in an absurd and hyperbolic narrative, this live-scored film, Sever, revisits the ancient Chinese folktale of Diao Chan with accompaniment by the modern Chinese band Xi Ban. Mixing classical instrumentation with westernized form, Xi Ban create an intriguing interplay between traditional Chinese idioms and American pop culture references.

Drawing parallel lines between Qi-style Peking Opera and southern blues, Pi Huang Club pairs this ancient Chinese form with a distinctly American musical style.

Adishatz/Adieu is produced by Bureau Cassiopée. Adishatz/Adieu was commissioned by Centre Chorégraphique National de Montpellier Languedoc Roussillon dans le cadre de domaines - FR, Centre Chorégraphique National de Franche-Comté à Belfort dans le cadre de l’accueil-studio - FR and BIT Teatergarasjen, Bergen with the development support of Centre national de la Danse (FR). Additional support provided by The Cultural Services of the French Embassy in the United States and Institut Français and with the help of DACM and the technical staff of Quartz, Scène Nationale de Brest.

Inspired by formative teenage years spent learning to imitate pop icons like Madonna and singing the greatest hits from the 1980s, Adishatz/Adieu is a self-portrait of performer and ventriloquist Jonathan Capdevielle; a collection of songs that wander between real life and fantasy.

Moving between music and conversation, memories of childhood are conjured alongside a past that continues to inform his shifting identity. On a journey to capture the personas of others, Capdevielle strives to discover the most truthful version of himself. Sung a cappella, Adishatz/Adieu aims to study the vulnerability of adolescence.

In this one-time-only dance event, a multigenerational group of performers from the Martha Graham Dance Company’s past, present, and future will excavate their relationships to Graham and the underlying “movement forces” that bind them to one another, to Graham, and to the Company.

Organized by Austrian choreographer and artist Michael Kliën, Excavation Site: Martha Graham U.S.A. bypasses the institutionalized social structures of the Company to uncover new paths of organization and potential between its participants. The work utilizes strategies of social choreography developed in collaboration with dramaturge Steve Valk, who has organized a complementary discursive component that will unfold alongside the performance in an adjacent studio.

Audiences are invited to explore the work for any length of time and are encouraged to move freely between the two spaces.

Excavation Site: Martha Graham U.S.A. is co-presented by the New Museum, as part of the Spring 2016 R&D Season: LEGACY; Martha Graham Dance Company, as part of its 90th season; and Performance Space 122 as part of the COIL 2016 Festival and is generously supported by the Austrian Federal Ministry for Education, the Arts and Culture and the Austrian Cultural Forum New York. PS122 presentation support provided by Mertz Gilmore Foundation, Harkness Foundation for Dance and Jerome Robbins Foundation.
Australia and NYC have a rich cultural conversation that has spanned decades, but too often misses the emerging, edgy independent scene that characterizes the strength of both places.

For COIL 2016, New York will get a taste of Australia’s exceptional independent arts through a program of works featuring Melbourne artists Helen Herbertson, Ranters Theatre and Brisbane’s Polytoxic, co-curated by Performance Space 122 and the City of Melbourne’s Arts House with generous support from the Australian Government through Australia Council for the Arts and the Australian Consulate-General in New York.

Through the Australia Council’s commitment to supporting this cultural exchange for a total of four years, PS122 will be presenting an extensive roster of Australian artists focused around the COIL Festival, a platform for international touring. As we begin year two of this international collaboration, we hope to open up a conversation that speaks to an ever-more-globalized audience about communities formed around ideas and artistic possibility rather than geography or identity.
“The soundscapes were often breathtaking and the subtle lighting really made you feel like you had been transported to somewhere new.”
—Wales Arts Review

A truly international collaboration between Australian based Ranters Theatre, acclaimed Brazilian visual artist Laura Lima, and UK musician, curator and dancer James Tyson—SONG is an exploration of place, wanderings and the nature of purposeful existence.

This immersive sound installation reinvents the song cycle form by combining the sounds of weather, the scent of earth and the colors of day’s end, transforming the space into a multi-sensory constructed “nature”.

SONG was developed in part by Arts House (Australia) with support by Arts Council Wales, the Victorian Government through Creative Victoria, the Australian Government through the Australia Council arts funding and advisory body.
Based on a series of real, intimate and diverse conversations with strangers, Intimacy gives a candid and sometimes disquieting portrait of everyday life where personal anxieties are never far from the surface.
